

But this leaves us with the obvious question: what does James mean by the phrase “you ask wrongly”? Clearly it does not mean that proper prayer requires a specific “formula,” for if that were the case, the Scriptures would surely make such a “formula” known. Indeed, the three-word prayer of Peter, “Lord, save me,” as he began to sink into the stormy water, was answered immediately by his all-powerful Savior, Yeshua (Matt 14:30). Rather, as James will teach us in the final paragraph of our chapter, to “ask wrongly” means to pray that God would grant something without having “if You are willing” as the foundational principle upon which the request is made. Praying as God intends us to pray has this primary goal: to glorify and honor God as the giver of everything that is good, and thus to submit to His will in all aspects of our lives. This is perfectly modeled for us in the prayer of Yeshua as He anticipated the terrible self-sacrifice He would endure to procure the salvation of all those for whom He would suffer.

And He withdrew from them about a stone’s throw, and He knelt down and began to pray, saying, “Father, if You are willing, remove this cup from Me; yet not My will, but Yours be done.” (Lk 22:41–42)

...so that you may spend it on your pleasures. – James makes it clear in the final phrase of our verse that to “ask wrongly” in prayer is to have one’s own desires in view rather than God’s will. This is made all the more evident when James uses the metaphor to “spend” (δαπανάω, dapanāō) coupled with “on your pleasures” (ἡδονή, hēdonē), for this clearly pictures seeking God in order to fulfill one’s own desires rather than desiring to honor Him by doing His will and giving Him the praise He deserves. Moreover, as we noted in v. 1 of our chapter, where the same word, hēdonē (“pleasures”) is used, in every other place outside of James where this word for “pleasures” is found, it always denotes “sinful pleasures,” i.e., that which pleases oneself without regard for others and particularly for what honors and pleases God.

4 – You adulteresses! Don’t you know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? Therefore whoever wishes to be a friend of the world makes himself an enemy of God.

Now James makes it very clear in regard to his meaning: to live life putting oneself as of highest importance is to deny the God Who created you and to identify oneself with the world.

You adulteresses! – The language James employs is bold and piercing to anyone who claims to be a child of God. He uses the term “adulteresses” metaphorically, but in doing so he does not diminish whatsoever the magnitude of the offense.

The Greek word itself, μοιχαλίδες (moixalides), is feminine in gender and thus answers to the biblical metaphor of marriage used to describe the relationship between God and His covenant people. In the Tanach, for instance, Israel is viewed as the wife of Adonai, Who is her husband, to emphasize the covenant relationship established by God with His chosen nation.

“Behold, days are coming,” declares the LORD, “when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah, not like the covenant which I made with their fathers in the day I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt, My covenant which they broke, although I was a husband to them,” declares the LORD. (Jer 31:31–32)¹

The same metaphor of marriage is used to describe the ekklesia Yeshua promised to build (cf. Matt 16:18).

For I am jealous for you with a godly jealousy; for I betrothed you to one husband, so that to Messiah I might present you as a pure virgin. (2Cor 11:2)

Let us rejoice and be glad and give the glory to Him, for the marriage of the Lamb has come and His bride has made herself ready. It was given to her to clothe herself in fine linen, bright and clean; for the fine linen is the righteous acts of the saints. Then he said to me, “Write, ‘Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.’” And he said to me, “These are true words of God.” (Rev 19:7–9)²

Thus, the ekklesia that Yeshua promised to build encompasses all believers from all ages who, by God’s sovereign appointment, have a covenant relationship with God through faith in Yeshua. This covenant relationship is pictured as a marriage in which Yeshua is the Groom and His ekklesia is the bride.

With this picture in mind, when James refers to those who profess to belong to Yeshua but who, in reality, are duped into believing that their “religion” is the means of gaining their own pleasures, they are like a person who is married and wears a wedding ring but is unfaithful to their spouse.

This is why James uses the feminine form, “adulteresses,” rather than the masculine “adulterers,” because the Greek word ἐκκλησία (ekklēsia) is feminine in gender. As such, he views everyone who confesses Yeshua to be their Lord and Savior as representing the ekklēsia and thus as representing the “bride of Messiah.”

The prophets used the imagery of “adultery” to figuratively describe unfaithful Israel. Since the covenant relationship between the chosen nation of Israel and God was viewed as a marriage, when Israel gave themselves to the worship of idols, they were committing spiritual adultery.

Surely, as a woman treacherously departs from her lover, so you have dealt treacherously with Me, O house of Israel,” declares the LORD. (Jer 3:20)

Then it came about after all your wickedness (“Woe, woe to you!” declares the Lord GOD), that you built yourself a shrine and made yourself a high place in every square. You built yourself a high place at the top of every street and made your beauty abominable, and you spread your legs to every passer-by to multiply your harlotry. You also played the harlot with the Egyptians, your lustful neighbors, and multiplied your harlotry to make Me angry. (Ezek 16:23–26)

When the LORD first spoke through Hosea, the LORD said to Hosea, “Go, take to yourself a wife of harlotry and have children of harlotry; for the land commits flagrant harlotry, forsaking the LORD.” (Hos 1:2)

Likewise, Yeshua referred to the generation of His time who were rejecting Him as those who were committing spiritual adultery, because the covenant God made with Israel required faithfulness to Him .

But He answered and said to them, “An evil and adulterous generation craves for a sign; and yet no sign will be given to it but the sign of Jonah the prophet; (Matt 12:39, cf. 16:4)

The eternal salvation procured by Yeshua for all who are saved is also revealed to us as a covenant:

and when He had given thanks, He broke it and said, "This is My body, which is for you; do this in remembrance of Me." In the same way He took the cup also after supper, saying, "This cup is the new covenant in My blood; do this, as often as you drink it, in remembrance of Me." For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until He comes. (1Cor 11:24–26)

This teaches us the eternal and infinite significance of being chosen by God unto eternal salvation. All who are truly His have become covenant members with Him, having been joined to Him through faith in the Messiah. This means that all who are "in the Messiah," will seek to be faithful to Him even as a wife and husband are faithful to each other in the covenant of marriage. It is the promise of God through the work of His Spirit, that those Yeshua has redeemed by His death will remain faithful to Him through the work of the indwelling, abiding Spirit.

Now He who establishes us with you in Christ and anointed us is God, who also sealed us and gave us the Spirit in our hearts as a pledge. (2Cor 1:21–22)

Some may wonder why the KJV, for instance, has "Ye adulterers and adulteresses" while the NASB, ESV, NIV, etc. have only "adulteresses." The reason is that there is a textual variant here. Some scribes were apparently surprised at the use of the feminine gender alone, apparently feeling that it was improper to exclude men as well. Thus, they wrote μοιχοὶ καὶ μοιχαλίδες, "adulterers and adulteresses" but the weight of textual evidence clearly shows that "adulteresses" alone is the original reading. Thus, early English translations such as the KJV, were done before many of the older manuscripts had been discovered, thus relying upon later manuscripts which had both "adulterers and adulteresses."¹

... Don't you know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? – James considers it the norm that all who have come to saving faith in Yeshua recognize and accept that there is a marked difference between the godless perspective of the world and the life of faith in Yeshua which honors Him and His righteousness.

μοιχοὶ καὶ μοιχαλίδες, \aleph^2 P Ψ \mathfrak{M} sy^h

The Greek word translated as “friendship” in our verse is φιλία (philia) and is found only here in the Apostolic Scriptures. It can carry the range of affection from “friendship” to “marital love.” Philia is found a number of times in the Lxx of the Tanach, but only in the book of Proverbs.¹ In Prov 5:15–19 the word philia is used to describe intimate relations that are reserved for marriage.

It is clear in our text that the word philia is used to describe something beyond what our English word “friendship” engenders. When James writes ἡ φιλία τοῦ κόσμου, “the philia of the world,” he is not describing common courtesy or kindness to others as we live in this fallen world. Rather, he is describing participation in the debauchery of the world which is contrary to the very righteousness of God. We can be sure of this because James describes such “love/friendship with the world” as causing “enmity with God.” The Greek word translated “enmity,” ἐχθρα (exthra) can also carry the sense of “hostility” and “hatred.”² To be at enmity with God is to be against Him and to desire the world, caring nothing about what pleases Him. This is made explicit in the next sentence of our verse.

... Therefore whoever wishes to be a friend of the world makes himself an enemy of God. – Here, James makes it very clear what he means by being a “friend of the world.” To be a “friend of the world” is, at the same time, to be an “enemy of God.” Here, the Greek word is ἐχθρός (exthros), which most often is used in the Apostolic Scriptures to denote an “enemy.” This word is used of Pilate and Herod who were enemies (Lk 23:12). James’ statement here reminds us of John’s words in 1John 2:15.

Do not love the world nor the things in the world. If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him. (1Jn 2:15)

John is using the word “love” in a covenant sense. To love the world means to live in accordance with the world’s standards, that which is contrary to the righteous standards of God, and thus to identify with the world and against God.

This fills out the meaning of “adulteresses” with which James begins this verse, for in using this metaphor James is describing the person who professes Yeshua to be their savior yet is marked by intimate connections with the world. There is no middle ground. There is no such thing as a “carnal believer,” that is, someone who is truly a child of God through faith in Yeshua but whose life is marked by those things which God hates, that is, the things of the world.

2 BDAG, “ἐχθρα,” p. 419. ἐχθρα is a feminine noun cognate to ἐχθρός, most often carrying the sense of “enemy.” The word is found 31 times in the Apostolic Scriptures, and the NASB translates it as “enemy” 30 times.

Surely every child of God, every believer in Yeshua, retains the sinful nature, the flesh, and must constantly be growing in spiritual strength to put to death the desires of the flesh and to yield themselves to the work of the Spirit in becoming more and more conformed to the very image of Yeshua. But when the believer gives in to the flesh and sins, repentance and the forgiveness God promises will inevitably be forthcoming.

The battle we fight against the draw of the world is one in which every child of God is engaged and will win, for by His grace we endure and through the work of the Spirit, enabling us to live in accordance with the truth of the Scriptures, we persevere in God’s grace until we will see Him face to face. It is this truth to which James now turns.

5 – Or do you think that the Scripture speaks to no purpose: “He jealously desires the Spirit which He has made to dwell in us”?

That in the previous context James pictures the relationship of the believer with God as that of a marriage, this now helps us understand the manner in which James portrays God as “jealous.” As one commentator puts it:

Verse 5 explains why flirtation with the world is so serious a matter by bringing to mind the jealousy of the Lord, which demands total, unreserved, unwavering allegiance from the people with whom He has joined Himself.¹

Many commentators have remarked that this verse is one of the most difficult to expound upon in the whole of the Apostolic Scriptures. The reasons for such difficulty may be summed in a number of issues.

First, when James writes that “the Scriptures speaks,” one immediately presumes that he is giving us a quote from the Tanach. However, the text he gives is nowhere specifically found in the Tanach.

Second, due to the manner in which the Greek is written, the main clause of the verse could be translated three different ways:¹

1. He who caused the Spirit to live in us yearns jealously
2. the spirit He caused to live in us yearns jealously
3. He jealously yearns for the Spirit He made to live in us

Given the previous context, it seems best to understand James' words here to be expressing God's jealousy as a husband longing for His wife's full and unfettered attention and love.

If we understand the word "spirit" to refer to the Holy Spirit, then the meaning would be that God in His sovereign love for His own, desires and directs His Spirit to bring about true sanctification and holiness of the believer in whom He dwells, for God is "jealous" in the right sense of that term for those who are His.

But if we take the word "spirit" to refer to the human spirit which God made to dwell in mankind (Gen 2:7), then James is describing God's rightful jealousy for each of His chosen ones to be completely faithful to Him and to have no attraction to the "world," i.e., that which "hates Yeshua."

The world cannot hate you, but it hates Me because I testify of it, that its deeds are evil. (Jn 7:7)

Either way the verse is understood, its main message is clear: God has an enduring love for all of His chosen people, those who have been redeemed by the precious blood of Yeshua and who are being sanctified by the work of the Spirit through the word of God, and therefore longs for each of His children to grow in genuine love for Him by living in a way that honors and glorifies Him as the one and only eternal, infinite God.

Thus, since James is not giving us a direct quote from the Tanach, how are we to understand his claim that the Scriptures state that God "jealously desires the Spirit which He has made to dwell in us?" We must understand James as not giving a direct quote from the Tanach, but giving us a general statement of what the Tanach teaches about God being jealous for His own. Thus we read:

You shall not worship them or serve them; for I, the LORD your God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers on the children, on the third and the fourth generations of those who hate Me, (Ex 20:5) for you shall not worship any other god, for the LORD, whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God. (Ex 34:14)

Thus says the LORD of hosts, 'I am exceedingly jealous for Zion, yes, with great wrath I am jealous for her.' (Zech 8:2)

The application of this biblical concept, of God's jealousy for His own, is clear: the love of God for all those who are His, a love which is eternal and infinite, is expressed in our text as a divine longing for the faithfulness, fidelity, and expressed love for those He has redeemed. Knowing this truth should cause each of us to become more and more aligned with that which pleases Him and to put away from our lives anything that we know displeases Him. As His redeemed people, we must constantly commit ourselves to "walk by the Spirit" so that "we will not carry out the desire of the flesh." (Gal 5:16)

6 – But He gives a greater grace. Therefore it says, "GOD IS OPPOSED TO THE PROUD, BUT GIVES GRACE TO THE HUMBLE."

Having understood the previous verse as teaching us that the Spirit of God Who indwells every believer is jealous for each of His own, we now see that it is the work of the Spirit in the life of the believer to enable them to turn from selfish ambitions and the draw of the world and to humbly submit to the leading of the Ruach, by which they are more and more conformed to the very image of the One Who redeemed them. Here, then, we see James giving us the positive perspective and necessary steps the child of God must take in order to overcome those things by which James characterizes a wayward believer in verses 1–5 of our chapter. In the previous context (vs. 1–5), he has emphasized:

- "quarrels and conflicts" which divide the believing community
- such quarrels and conflicts proceed from "pleasures that wage war in your members."
- "lust," i.e., the desire to have something others have, such as position, authority, applause, status, etc.
- lashon hara, gossip, slander, failing to believe and live with the truth that all good things come from God ("you do not ask")
- when you do ask God, you ask with wrong motives, i.e., to "spend it on yourself," i.e., to build yourself up in the eyes of others
- friendship with the world, i.e., seeking to be accepted by the worldly society
